The market has been rather inactive here. At the extreme south, however, a better feeling has been evinced. An advance in rates at New Orleans and Mobile has induced cotton to come forward more freely, and the receipts are large. The position of the crop is now as follows:

 The following are comparative prices, Liverpool classification :-

This market is quite brisk, and prices have slightly improved. The receipts continue small, hardly keeping pace with the demand. We quote common Genesee at $4,94 a $6,00, fancy brands at $5,124 a $5,25. Ohio good brands $4,87½, common do at $4,81, Michigan, $4,81 a $4,87½.

This market is very firm to-day, some holders demand $5] for Genesee, and hold on at that price in expectation of a further rise. This firmness among holders is not confined to this market, but throughout the country prices appeared to be advancing, and receipts in most of the ports small. The millers of the west give the best price for wheat as fast as effered, and at some places are glad to get a supply even at a fraction above what appears at present to be a fair price. Should the receipts fall below the present average, and the demand continue fair, prices for all descriptions of flour must improve very much.

The receipts of western flour in this market up to this time, since the opening of navigation, have been very small, compared with the large stocks of the interior, and prices, instrad of gradually declining as we anticipated, on the opening of navigation, have steadily improved, until they have reached a point full as high as during any part of the spring, and almost as high as at any time during the close of navigation. This state of our market is so much more favorable than the most sanguine expected, that we look for a continuance of the present fair prices, with an equal active demand.

Statement of the quantity of flour shipped from Cleveland Ohio, from the 15th to the 24th inst:—

To the U. States ports,

The forwarding houses at all the large shipping ports of the west, are doing an extensive business, everything in the shape of a vessel, that will flont, is put into use, to take forward the accumulating stocks. Most of the forwarders can ship a cargo of wheat, say 5,000 bushels, in six to eight hours.

Prices of flour at a few of the princinal markets, at t latest dates—we give the extremes. Very little variatibe has taken

The quotations for American flour in Montreal rule at 24 a 25s. Small sales are daily made at those rates. The receipts of flour since the opening of navigation to the 27th inst. amount to 44 817 barrels; the stock on hand upon the opening of the season was little short of 33,000 bbls. Canada made flour was quoted at 21 a 22s.

The effect of the proposel reduction in the duty on flour imported into England from her Canadian colonies, will be to establish a regularity of prices in the mother country. It will benefit the non-producing classes by reducing the price of bread stuffs, without creating a corresponding benefit to this country, or to the Canadas. At the

try. It will benefit the non-producing classes by reducing the price of bread stuffs, without creating a corresponding benefit to this country, or to the Canadas. At the present prices in England, and the high rate of freights, wheat must be purchased in this country for nothing to undersell or even to sell at current quotations, and make the most trifling profit. The fact that flour can be imported from this country into England, through the Canadas, cheaper than from any other part of the world, will keep a check upon the corn laws, sufficient to create a competition bet ween the preducers at home and abroad, without benefiting either party.

The producers in this country are directly benefited by the reduction of the duties, admitting our grain into the Canadas; it makes little difference to them whether the duty on flour into England from Canada is 12s or 3s, as the Canadians stand in that gap. The new duty on American Wheat imported into Canada goes into effect on the first day of July, about four weeks from this day, and as yet, not a bushel of wheat has been purchased in the western market, by Canadian millers, to be mafactured into British flour, for shipment. This fact is conclusive evidence, that the season will pass by without that in creased demand for our wheat that was anticipated.

The Canadian millers have made extensive arrangements to carry on the manufacture of American wheat into British flour, for exportation, but the low price in England has destroyed their calculations, and prevented them from receiving any benefit from the capital invested.

The consideration of the existing state of things, for England has destroyed their calculations, and prevented them from receiving any benefit from the capital invested.

The only chance, under the existing state of things, for our surplus to find a profitable market in England, is the failure of the crop there; they will not take our produce to the injury of their own farmers, unless compelled to, on the chances of which, we can make no calculations.

We have heard of complaints from the South of the attack of the weevil in the wheat fields, which, doubtless, are well founded, but as the ravages of that insect are confined to old wheat lands, it will not affect the section of the country our largest supplies come from. At the West the only danger the wheat crop is subject to, is the rust, which is governed by the weather, and may strike the plant just at maturity, and destroy a large portion of the whole crop in an instant.

All the accounts that have reached us from the west continue to speak very sanguinely of the approaching harvest. Corn is largely cultivated at the west, but at the south the lateness of the season has prevented the planters from getting as much land in corn as heretofore—their attention being directed to their Cotton crop at the usual time for planting. Other small grain crops are cultivated to a large extent, compared with former years. The new land annually brought into cultivation, is more than the increased consumption of its productions.

HAVANA, May 15.—During the last week prices have suffered a further decline, in consequence of the numerous arrivals of vessels. We note as follows:—A brig of 1000 boxes at £2 128 6d; a ship of 3000 at £2 28 6d; and another of the same class at £2 3s, all for Hamburg. For Cowes no transactions have occurred. £2 12s 6d have been paid for two largely vessels to St. Petersburg. From these rates a further decline cannot be expected, because United States vessels prefer to leave in ballast; and some sugars have been shipped thence at $150 per box; and one small vessel has been engaged at $3 per hhd. molasses.
